SEYMOUR DAILY REPUBLICAN

VOLUME XXXI NO. 253 SEYMOUR, INDIANA, MONDAY, OCTOBER 7, 1912. PRICE TWO CENTS

TWO DAMAGE SUITS AGAINST B. & O. CO.

Daniel and John Tormoehlen File Complaints Asking For $500 Each For Injuries.

ALLEGE PERMANENT INJURIES

Aver That They Started to Step From Train and Were Thrown to Platform With Great Force.

Two cases for damages have been filed in the Jackson circuit court against the B. & O. S-W. The actions were filed by Daniel Tormoehlen and John Tormoehlen, who allege that they were injured while getting off of one of the defendant's trains in this city in January 1911.

The complaint filed by Daniel Tormoehlen alleges that he called at the B. & O. station in Seymour to purchase a ticket for Mitchell, but at the time he made the request for the ticket the agent informed him that he had no time to make the sale as he was required to deliver some United States mail to the Seymour postoffice. The complaint alleges that the ticket agent of the defendant company advised the plaintiff to board the train without a ticket and that his advice was followed.

He further avers that after he had taken a seat in the train a brakeman, or some other employe of the B. & O. Company, called out for all passengers who had not purchased tickets to get off the train and do so as the train would wait for them. The plaintiff alleges that upon this advice he started to leave the train to purchase the ticket, but while he was on the act of lighting from the step the train suddenly began to back causing the plaintiff to fall with great force to the platform injuring his back and spinal column. He alleges that he was injured so as to cause slight paralysis which seems to be of a permanent nature. He asks for $500 damages.

The complaint of John Tormoehlen against the same company alleges that the plaintiff was injured at the same time and the allegations are practically the same with the exception that the injuries of the plaintiff in this case consists of an injured hip bone affecting the sciatic nerve. He declares that his injuries cause him great pain at times. He also asks for $500 damages.

James A. Williams vs. Arthur Cropper, for possession of real estate and damage. In his complaint the plaintiff says that he is the owner of 80 acres of land in Hamilton township. That heretofore said land was owned by J. M. Peek, who had rented the same to the defendant for crop rentals until September 1st, 1912, but notwithstanding that his rights to said lands had expired, the defendant continues to hold unlawful possessions of said lands. The plaintiff asks for immediate possession and $5 damages.

Oliver D. Lumpkin and Son, assignors; Jackson County Loan and Trust Company, assignees.

Omni W. Tuell vs. Henry Reynolds et al, on note; demand, $250.

Julia N. Johnson vs. Elmer E. Boone, on note, demand, $3.30.

Lewis Brothers, assignors; Oscar Allen, assignee.

AUTOMOBILE OVERTURNED

Machine Belonging to Dan Dodds Ditched Near Marion Church.

An automobile belonging to Dan Dodds of Hayden went into a deep ditch and was overturned Sunday afternoon near Marion church in Jennings county. Dr. Dodds with his wife and four passengers were on their way to Paris and about a mile west of the church met a man on horseback. The horse became frightened at the machine and when Mr. Dodds, who was driving, looked back the machine darted into the ditch.

The automobile was completely overturned but fortunately none of the passengers was hurt. The top of the machine was up and it was due to this that the passengers were not injured. A number of farmers living in the vicinity came to the assistance of the people and after machine was righted it was pulled to the road. It was not damaged to any extent and the party continued on their journey.

AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

Two Machines Damaged in a Smashup Sunday Afternoon.

Two automobiles, owned by Dr. J. M. Shields and William Rebber, of this city, figured in a smashup Sunday afternoon near Cobb schoolhouse west of the city. Both of the machines were more or less damaged. The automobiles were going in opposite directions and the smashup was evidently due to the heavy sand.

When Dr. Shields saw the Rebber machine approaching him he turned to the right but Mr. Rebber remained in the track being unable to turn out because of the deep sand. The Rebber machine was put out of commission, the steering wheel being broken and other parts twisted and bent. One of the front tires of Dr. Shields' machine was cut and some damage was done to the axle of one of the rear wheels.

REGISTRATION DAY

Last Regular Session of Boards Being Held Today.

The last regular session of the registration boards were held today. Every voter who has not registered at one of the two previous sessions and does not do so by the time the boards close tonight will not be entitled to a vote at the November election. Under the law any registration precinct may remain open for one of two days longer if a petition is filed by five voters before the board adjourns, but at 3 o'clock this afternoon no petitions had been filed, and it is probable that today will be the last opportunity the voters of Seymour will have to register.

A good percentage of the voters who had not registered filed their certificates with the boards today. In every precinct, however, there are quite a number who have not complied with the law and it is likely that a small per cent. will not be able to vote next month. The democratic and republican workers were out during the day calling attention to the voters not registered that this was their last opportunity and this warning had much to do with the good per cent. registering.

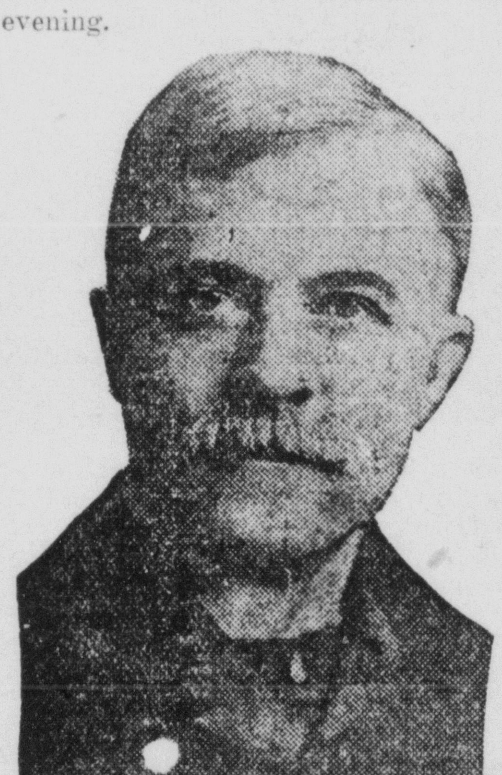
DURBIN TO SPEAK TOMORROW NIGHT

Seymour People Looking Forward With Pleasure to the Address of The Former Governor.

LADIES GIVEN INVITATION

Jean Attkisson, Well Known Humorous Lecturer of Ohio, Will Accompany the Speaker.

Col. Winfield T. Durbin former governor of the state of Indiana, will speak at the Majestic theater Tuesday night. Col. Durbin will be accompanied by Mrs. Durbin and will arrive here some time tomorrow afternoon. He is making a speaking tour over counties in southern Indiana, and is making the trip over land in his own automobile. Tomorrow he will speak at Franklin, Edinburg and Columbus, and will arrive here late in the afternoon for his address in the evening.



COL. WINFIELD T. DURBIN.

Dr. Durbin is a practical business man and his address will be filled with plain facts about a business administration of state affairs. He is recognized as one of the best governors the state has ever had and his administration was marked by a high degree of business ability. His address will contain many facts which will be of interest to every voter in Jackson county. The ladies of Seymour are given a special invitation to hear the address of Co. Durbin.

Word was received here this morning that Jean Attkisson, the well known Ohio humorous lecturer will accompany Mr. Durbin on his trip to this city and will give a lecture Tuesday evening. This is of special interest as Mr. Attkisson is regarded as one of the foremost platform lecturers of Ohio.

From Seymour Mr. Durbin will go to Scottsburg, New Albany and Jeffersonville. From there he will start on a tour to West Baden, speaking at several cities and towns along the way.

ASKS LAWYERS TO QUIT WRANGLING

Seba A. Barnes Sitting as Special Judge, Wants Peace in the Family of Attorneys.

CALLED ADVOCATES DOWN

Case Upon Account is Being Tried but Judge Said it Sometimes Looked Like Action For Divorce.

Seba A. Barnes, who is sitting as special judge in the case of Albert Brown against Stephen N. Davis up on account on trial in the Bartholomew circuit court, stated Saturday that he is opposed to the continuous wrangling and quarreling among the attorneys. He called the advocates of the law down several times and told them that he would do his best to keep peace in the family of the attorneys.

The plaintiff is asking for the collection of an account made by the wife of the defendant. Mr. and Mrs. Davis have recently separated and the defense is made upon that ground.

Speaking of the case the Columbus Republican says:

"I am going to do my best to keep peace in this family—that is, in this family of lawyers," said Special Judge Seba A Barnes, in Circuit Court this morning. He addressed his remarks to the court room at large and to attorneys John Rynerson, Julian Sharpnack, Walter Rynerson, Frank S. Jones and Marshall Hacker in particular.

The case of Albert Brown, local grocer, against Stephen N. Davis, on account, demanding $65, was on trial. The jury was secured last evening and the taking of evidence began today. The evidence was not confined to the alleged unpaid grocery account. It went back to the beginning of the married life of Mr. and Mrs. Davis and came down slowly to the time of their separation. The lawyers wrangled and tilted continuously. Then it was that Judge Barnes said he hoped to be able to keep peace in the family of lawyers.

There had been an objection to some testimony of Mrs. Mary M. Davis. She said that she collapsed one night. Counsel for Davis objected to this form of testimony because they said the jury could not tell from the word collapse what the condition of the witness was at the time. Judge Hacker replied to Attorney Sharpnack, declaring it was an insult to intimate that the jury did not have intelligence enough to understand what Mrs. Davis meant when she said she collapsed.

Attorney Sharpnack told the court he certainly wanted to recent the unwarranted attack upon him by Judge Hacker and said such attacks came as a surprise to him from a man who had been a judge of this court. He insisted that he had not reflected on the intelligence of the judy.

Judge Hacker said he supposed Attorney Sharpnack felt better, "now that he had gotten these remarks off his stomach," and he went on to say that Sharpnack had insulted the jury by doubting the ability of the jurymen

CHAUTAUQUA OFFICERS

Of Columbus Association Will Be Here Friday Night.

Clifford Wiethoff, who is taking an active interest in the proposed chautauqua in this city, has made arrangements with three of the officers of the Columbus Association to be present at the meeting here Friday night. M. T. Reeves, president of that association, is in New York City and will not return before Friday night, but Ed. Lindsey, treasurer, Ed. Green, secretary, and Tom Elrod, manager, have agreed to be present. It was decided to invite the officers of the Columbus Association at the last meeting and ask them to give their experience in chautauqua work.

An invitation has been issued to each of the women's clubs to attend the meeting which will be held at the city building. There is considerable interest shown in the chautauqua movement, and it is believed that some valuable suggestions will be given by the Columbus men who have consented to give their experience with the work.

OPENS TODAY

Series "D" of the Co-Operative Building and Loan Association.

The new series of stock in the Co-Operative Building and Loan Association opens today. Already a large number of shares have been taken, and many others have told the secretary that they expect to take out stock this evening or within the next day or two. Each series started by this Association is larger than the one preceding it, and Series "D" now promises to surpass by a large number of shares the series started last spring.

If you are interested in saving money regularly and placing it where it will earn a dividend from the very start, take some stock in this series.

See the secretary, Thomas J. Clark, Opera House block, for full particulars.

RILEY DAY.

Birthday of Hoosier Poet Observed in Local Schools.

This is the birthday anniversary of James Whitcomb Riley, the Hoosier poet, and fitting exercises were held in several of the rooms of the public school. In the high school records of Mr. Riley's poems were given on the Victrola, and were much appreciated. In several of the grades some of his poems were read and a short history of his life given.

Practically all of the schools in Indiana today observed Riley Day. He is one of Indiana's noted men and his name has become so prominent that it is almost synonymous with Indiana. The day was observed with extensive exercises at Greenfield, Mr. Riley's former home. He was expected to drive from Indianapolis to that place and be present for part of the exercises.

SURPRISE SPRUNG IN DYNAMITE CASE

Edward Clark, One of Forty-five Defendants, Pleaded Guilty to Charges Against Him.

WAS CINCINNATI LEADER

Before His Arrest He Was Business Manager of the Local Union in That City.

Indianapolis, October 7.—The ranks of the defendants in the dynamite conspiracy case were broken this morning, when Edward Clark, of Cincinnati, one of those on trial, entered a plea of guilty in federal court to the charges against him.

That Clark's plea was a big surprise to the other forty-five defendants was evident from the looks cast in his direction.

The defendant, who thus admitted that the government's charges against him were true in all particulars, was business agent of the Cincinnati local union of iron workers from January, 1908, to July, 1911. He was a close friend of J. J. McNamara, who formerly lived at Cincinnati.

He was the principal leader of the Cincinnati iron workers during the time of the vigorous attack on the Pittsburg Construction Company and the Grainger Construction Company and the dynamiting of the work being put up by these companies.

Clark is the man also who dynamited a bridge at Dayton, and the handle of whose umbrella, with his initials, "E. C.," carved thereon, was found at the scene of the explosion.

There is a story in circulation that just as Ortie E. McManigal, on being arrested at Detroit, found he had been "snitched on," he turned around and gave up all information he had, so Clark, finding he had been betrayed, and also seeing that the government "had the goods on him," concluded it was needless to fight the case longer.

GIVES A DAY TO HOOSIER POET

Greenfield Will Celebrate Riley's Birthday.

GOING BACK TO OLD HOME

Birthplace of the Well Loved Poet Will Welcome Honored Son's Return on Wednesday, When a General Holiday Will Be Observed in the Town—Mr. Riley Will Ride at Head of a Parade of School Children.

Greenfield, Ind., Oct. 7.—A big celebration of Riley day is being planned in this city, the birthplace and the home of James Whitcomb Riley until after he had reached young manhood. A proclamation has been issued by Mayor Ora Myers, designating next Wednesday as a holiday and calling on the merchants and citizens to assist in the observance of the poet's birthday. Mr. Riley will be present. The schools will be dismissed, and the county superintendent will be asked to invite all the country schools to take part in the exercises. If the day is favorable Mr. Riley, in an automobile, will lead a parade of all the school children of the city. The parade will be followed by a program in the courthouse yard, when Mr. Riley will greet the people of the county. Five-minute talks will be made by neighbors and boyhood associates of Mr. Riley.

MAY CLOSE MILLS

Servians, Turks and Greeks Quit Work Without Notice.

Gary, Ind., Oct. 7.—Natives of the Balkan states employed in the steel mills here quit work without serving notice, and there is grave danger that the mills will have to shut down for lack of men to man the plant. Probably 1,000 Servians, known as reservists, will depart at once to take part in the threatened war. Hundreds of Turks and Greeks are also included in the exodus.

Laporte, Ind., Oct. 7.—About 300 Greeks of this city are preparing to leave here for the fatherland in a few days, following the breaking of the new war cloud. John Moshos, prominent business man of this city, received word that he was wanted at home to take command of troops, and he will take all his countrymen here who can raise funds to make the trip. Many of the local Greeks are subject to recall in case of war, and many are going without that string to them.

To Supplement Bird Law.

Indianapolis, Oct. 7.—George W. Miles, state commissioner of fisheries and game, has agreed to father a bill in the 1913 legislature to prohibit the sale of aigrettes in Indiana. Mr. Miles said the state department would fight for a bill to prohibit the sale of such feathers and plumage in Indiana as supplementary to the law now in effect in Indiana, which makes it a crime to kill songbirds.

Circumstances Against Him.

Attica, Ind., Oct. 7.—The coroner's jury returned a verdict holding Gilbert Crumley for the grand jury in connection with the recent brutal killing of his wife. Strong circumstantial evidence was brought out at the coroner's inquest. Crumley told his story well, stoutly denying killing his wife. Throughout the sitting he remained calm and unshaken.

W. C. T. U. Re-Elects Officers.

Kokomo, Ind., Oct. 7.—Mrs. Culia Vayhinger of Upland was re-elected president of the Indiana Woman's Christian Temperance Union. The other officers also were re-elected, including Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley of Liberty, vice president, and Miss Mary Woodard of Fountain City, corresponding secretary.

Stabbed in Back.

Winchester, Ind., Oct. 7.—During a fight here between his father, Charles Tansell, and Robert N. Krofft of Greencastle, Ruskin Tansell, sixteen years old, slipped behind Krofft and stabbed him three times in the back. The blade broke off in Krofft's body and it is feared he is fatally injured.

Victim of Unknown Assassins.

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 7.—Joseph Tomocko was shot and fatally wounded by three unknown men, who jumped into a carriage and drove rapidly away from the scene. The motive for the crime is unknown. Tomocko is dying.

Struck a Broken Rail.

Michigan City, Ind., Oct. 7.—Several passengers were hurt, but none seriously, when a Pere Marquette passenger train struck a broken rail five miles east of this city. The last three cars were ditched.

One of the most startling changes ever seen in any man, according to W. B. Holsclaw, Clarendon, Tex., was effected years ago in his brother. "He had such a dreadful cough," he writes, "that all our family thought he was going into consumption, but he began to use Dr. King's New Discovery and was completely cured by ten bottles. Now he is sound and well and weighs 218 pounds. For many years our family has used this wonderful remedy for Coughs and Colds with excellent results." It's quick, safe, reliable and guaranteed. RESTORE GRAY HAIR TO NATURAL COLOR

Sage and Sulphur Remedy For Dandruff, Faded and Gray Hair.

The old idea of using Sage for darkening the hair is again coming in vogue. Our grandmothers had dark, glossy hair at seventy-five, while our mothers are gray before they are fifty. Our grandmothers kept their hair soft and glossy with a "Sage Tea," which also restored the natural color.

One objection to using such a preparation was the trouble of making it. This objection his been overcome by the Wyeth Chemical Company of New York, who has placed on the market a superior preparation of Sage, combined with Sulphur and other valuable remedies for dandruff, itching scalp, and thin, weak, falling hair.

The beauty of the hair depends more on its rich even shading than anything else. Don't have dry, harsh faded hair, when a simple harmless remedy will bring back the color in a few days; and don't be tormented with dandruff, itching scalp and loose, falling hairs. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy will quickly correct these troubles, and give color, strength and beauty to your hair.

Get a fifty-cent bottle from your druggist today, and prove this to your own satisfaction. All druggists sell it, under guarantee that the money will be refunded if the remedy is not exactly as represented. Special Agents Andrews Drug Co. O14d

Aviator Collided With Windmill.

Corning, N. Y., Oct. 7.—M. Kondo, a young Japanese, was thrown to his death from a plunging aeroplane held fast by the fans of a windmill at Savona. The aviator had made a desperte effort to avoid a collision with the mill, but had been caught almost when his efforts seemed crowned with success, and he was thrown out before he had time to stop his motor and prevent the plunging of the machine, which, checked, might have saved his life.

Caught at the Crossing.

Princeton, Ind., Oct. 7.—Frank Deering, a farm hand, was injured and a team of horses he was driving were killed when the rig was struck at a crossing three miles south of here by a C. & E. I. passenger train. One of the horses was carried for a quarter of a mile on the pilot of the engine before the train could be brought to a stop.

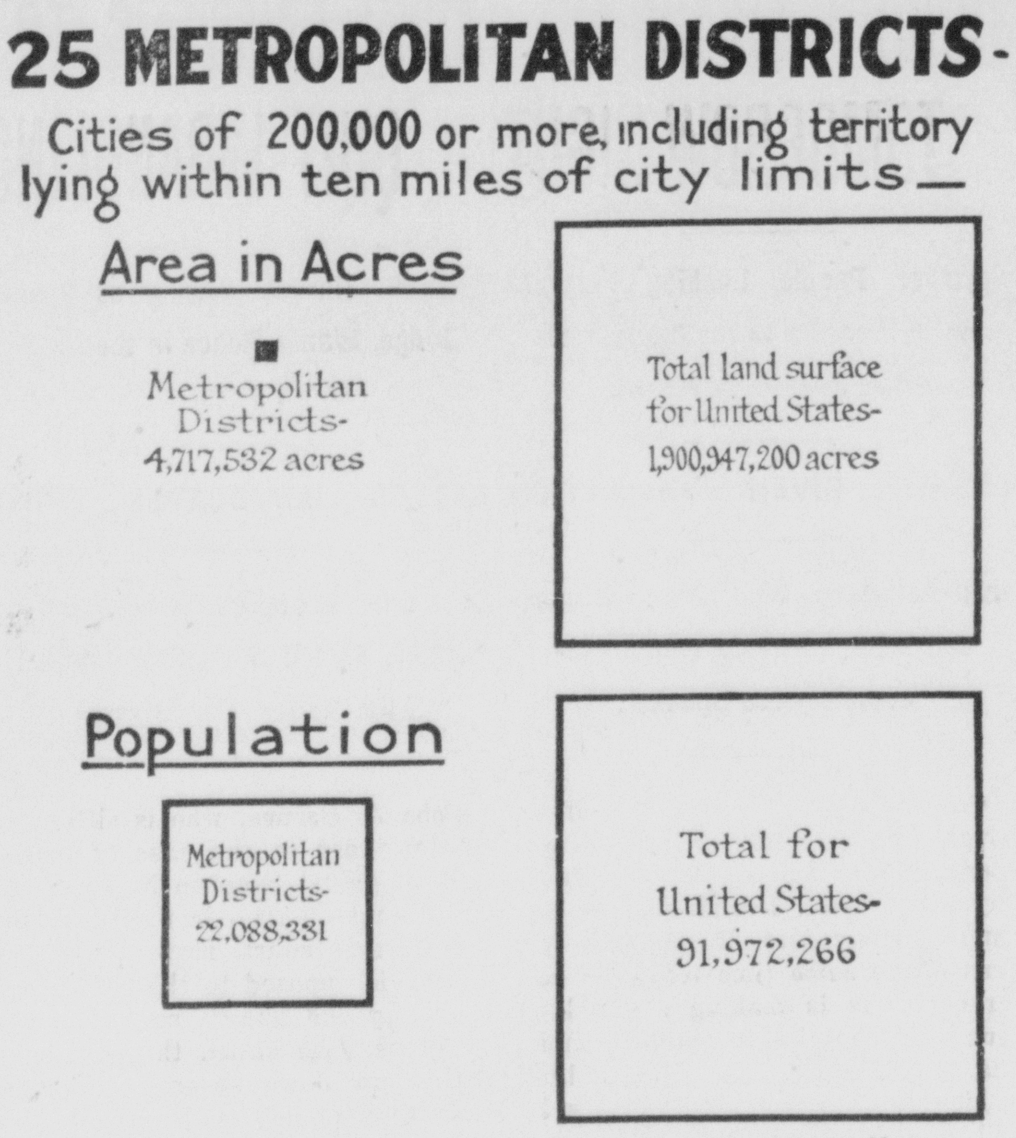
The Growth of the City

By CHARLES STELZLE

THE plea that big cities are bad for the people is not a new one. Aristotle limited the ideal city to 10,000 inhabitants. Plutarch and Cicero sought by persuasion to turn back the current of emigration which came from the country. Justinian tried to stop it by legal measures. The Tudors and the Stuarts issued proclamations forbidding the erection of new houses in London, enjoining the country people to return to their homes. But persuasion and legislation were both in vain. The city has developed in spite of the teaching of philosophers and the edicts of rulers because the growth of populations and their manner of making a living are determined by certain forces over which neither kings nor philosophers have ultimate control.



One-Fourth of the population in the United States lives on 1/400 of the total land area

The census returns just completed give some very interesting figures with reference to the growth of the city in the United States during the years from 1900 to 1910. The population as a whole increased 21 per cent, but the cities of 25,000 and over increased 55 per cent, whereas the rural population increased only about 11 per cent. Nearly 50 per cent of the entire population lives in cities of 2,500 and over. About one-tenth of the population resides in the cities of New York, Chicago and Philadelphia. Twenty-two per cent lives in cities of 100,000 and over.

Like great whirlpools, these centers are drawing to themselves those elements which constitute the social unrest. In the cities are found practically every great social problem that one finds anywhere else, only much more intensified. Negroes constitute one-fourth or more of the total population in each of twenty-seven principal cities, and in four of them the proportion is more than half. Of foreign born whites in the United States as a whole there are 14.5 per cent. In the cities of 25,000 and over there are 26.2 per cent. In thirteen principal cities more than 40 per cent of the population is foreign born. In each of fifteen cities having 250,000 population or more the percentage of foreign born and the children of foreign born represent more than half the population, and in eleven of them it is more than two-thirds.

The Little Things

By Wilbur D. Nesbit

There is no mighty problem that the wise ones have not solved;
They tell us how from nothingness creation was evolved—
How whirling mist went twisting till it gathered into suns,
And how they spun and spattered off a million lesser ones;
And how, attracted and repelled, these suns set off through space,
Until at last, they settled in the paths that now they trace.
But through it all no one has told, if anybody knows,
What alchemy it is that puts the perfume in a rose.

They know the distance to the stars—the measurement is plain;
Each planet's weight is told by some great scientific crane;
Triangles are laid out whose base ends in the dim unknown,
Upon some drifting star whose radiance has never shown;
Then faultless calculation bids them tell, with faith serene,
The orbit of a satellite whose light is never seen.
But who can tell the way a bee goes straightly to its home,
When burdened with the sweetness for the empty honeycomb?

All the foundations of the earth, that rose in massive tiers
Of strata, have been given dates that span a million years;
And now we speak with knowledge of the old primeval silt
Upon whose gloomy barrenness the earth was slowly built.
But who may give the reason for the flowing of the tides—
The silent laughter of the sea that lifts and shakes its sides?
And who may tell us what it is of night, or noon, or morn
That makes the self-same clod of earth give us both wheat and corn?

Where does the lily get its white, the cherry get its red?
Upon what form of airy food are all the orchids fed?
Why does the dirt that yields the grass its hue of living green
Gild all the dandelions with their gleaming golden sheen?
And why? And why? Like children we may ask the lengthy list
Of questions as to little things, nor know how they exist.
The ancient and the faraway we think we understand,
But falter when we think upon the wonders close at hand.

PROSPEROUS FARMERS HARD TO CONVINCE

Times Too Bountiful for Beveridge to Win Votes in Agricultural Districts of Indiana.

Albert J. Beveridge, in seeking the governorship of Indiana, is having to content with some conditions over the state which are not conducive to winning votes for him. He is speaking to the farmers at fairs, at county seats, and other places, and the Rochester Republican reports some everyday conditions which confronted the candidate when he spoke at the Fulton county fair. The Republican says:

After the Beveridge speech two Fulton county farmers were heard discussing the same at the fair ground. Each had been swayed by the orator and almost persuaded to become "Progressive." The speaker's excoriation of the unrighteous political "bosses," the maladministration of governmental affairs, the avarice of the trusts, the malignity of the two old parties, and all sounded argumentative for the Bull Moose propositions, until one of the said farmers commenced to "hedge" on conditions as he viewed them, the status of business, satisfactory markets, high prices of products, the activity of commercial and industrial interests everywhere, and then a casual glance was made around the fair ground.

Beveridge had been addressing the best fed, best clothed, best schooled, most prosperous, contented and happy crowd that ever assembled in the fair ground. Over one hundred farmers had ridden into the grounds in their own automobiles who could not sell a fifteen-dollar hog of today for enough money to buy a wheelbarrow during the Cleveland administration. Everywhere these farmers looked the evidence of prosperity met their gaze, exhibits of prize draft horses, beef and dairy cattle, sheep, hogs, etc., happy sons and richly clad daughters, new buggies, fine harness and a thousand other things fair to see.

On the fair grounds were many amusements and in the pockets of the people were ready cash to patronize the same. Coming into this city of less than 4,000 population said farmers found four auto passenger trucks and as many horse hacks, all doing business and making money because people have spare money for luxuries. Shelves in every business house in Rochester loaded with best goods, every shop and factory on the boom, public utilities crowded to their capacity, railroads burdened with business, farmers presenting checks at the banks who say they don't need the money—"just add it to my account." They also found that ten thousand people had visited Lake Manitou this season, who had money to spend because they had made money. In fact there is not a single well-founded argument why any man should vote against an administration that has made times what they are today.

FARM CROPS IN POLITICS.

Farmers Should Vote for Taft to Sustain Good Prices for Big Grain Output.

Bumper crops in Indiana hold a peculiar relation to the political campaign this year. None of the political parties are assuming credit for the great crop of corn and other yields of Indiana soil. But the Republicans are correctly holding that it is the general prosperity of the country under the administration of President Taft that is giving the farmers good prices for their grain, and that if the farmers do not want to see the bottom drop out of the market the tillers of the soil should look back to the lean years when a Democratic administration was in charge of the national government. A bumper crop and low prices for grain is the same to the farmer as a poor yield and a high market price.

The big crops are not confined to Indiana, but cover the country. The production of grain alone this year is valued at $3,800,000,000, or $250,000,000 more than in 1911, and these returns are magnified by the abundant grass crops, potatoes, other farm truck and the fruit crops that have thrived in plentitude throughout the year. Cotton and live stock also will contribute nation.

While the politicians are talking liberally t othe prosperity of the farmers are reaping record-breaking crops of all kinds; the steel business the barometric guide of actual conditions, is turning out a production ahead of all previous figures; iron, copper and other metals are being put out in enormous quantities, with supply falling short of demand; manufactories are running at full capacity, wholesale and retail business universally is brisk and the only drawbacks are a scarcity of labor and a shortage of cars on the railroads to move their freight, which is constantly increasing in volume.

The rush that fills the farmer's purse, that swells the merchant's and manufacturer's bank account, that fills the dinner pail and brings happiness into every walk of life is getting under way and built upon a stable basis of actual value confidence necessarily must gain ground.

With the quickening pulse of industrial activity are all of the evidence that the movement is one of Harmony.

A DEAL WITH THE BREWERIES

Former Governor J. Frank Hanly Confirms Deal of A. J. Beveridge With Indianapolis Brewer.

Reports that have gone abroad relative to a deal made by A. J. Beveridge, when a candidate for U. S. Senator, for the support of the brewery interests of the state, have been confirmed by former Governor J. Frank Hanly, who is quoted in the Patriot Phalanx, the Prohibition organ, of Indianapolis, which says:

In last week's issue of the Patriot Phalanx we referred to the record of Albert J. Beveridge on the temperance issue. An extract was given from an editorial in the Marion Chronicle by editor Lockwood, reviewing some of the history of the campaign eight years ago. At that time Beveridge was striving for re-election as United States senator, and made alliances with the brewery interests, but after election he could not deliver the goods. This greatly angered Albert Lieber, president of the Indianapolis Brewing Company.

A Phalanx representative, wishing to know more particulars concerning the things mentioned in the chronicle, this week interviewed ex-Governor J. Frank Hanly, who furnished some interesting information. In January, 1905, Mr. Hanly, in his inaugural message to the legislature, recommended the passage of a township remonstrance law. The next day brewer Lieber rushed excitedly into the Governor's office and hotly declared to the state executive:

"I want to tell you, Mr. Hanly, that the measure you recommended yesterday can not pass in this legislature."

Taken by surprise, the Governor demanded: "What right have you, sir, to say that temperance laws can or can not be passed?"

"Well, I serve notice on you that if such a bill does go through I'll put a majority in the houses and senate two years from now which will repeal it," retorted the brewer.

To this Mr. Hanly replied: "I am glad to know your position, Mr. Lieber, and I will tell you that if you carry out that threat and try to do that I will take the question to the people and tell them what you have said to me here today."

Mr. Lieber then changed his tactics and said, "Anyway, your message is a breach of confidence, for I was assured that there would be no temperance legislation this year."

"Upon whose authority, sir, were you given such a promise? Certainly not from me," said the Governor.

"No, not directly, for I have never talked with you before today, but Jim Goodrich (Republican state chairman), told me that."

"All right, Mr. Goodrich is in the city and we can telephone and have him here in ten minutes. He will not dare say in my presence that he had any authority to make you such a promise as you have described."

At this point the brewer let the cat out of the bag and showed who was the person with whom he had been bargaining by saying: "Well, it was not Mr. Goodrich who talked to me, but Mr. Beveridge told me that Goodrich said that was the agreement, and that in case of Republican success at the last election no temperance bills were to be passed in this legislature."

"Then that is a matter for you and Mr. Beveridge to settle between yourselves," said Governor Hanly, and the interview concluded.

Mad as a wet hen Lieber rushed out, and a few minutes later met Chairman Goodrich, to whom he denounced Beveridge as a liar, and his remarks were punctuated with oaths.

Since Mr. Beveridge is himself a candidate for Governor this year he will be in a position to speak with more authority when it comes to assuring the brewers that their business will be undisturbed by him in case of election.

TAFT BUTTONS BY THE PECK.

Taft and other Republican campaign buttons have been distributed over Indiana by the peck from headquarters of the State Central Committee at Indianapolis, over 50,000 of the insigna having been sent out in the last week. The headquarters has been fairly swamped with requests for buttons from scores of counties, cities and towns, and new supplies are being distributed as rapidly as they can be obtained from the manufacturers.

Tons of campaign literature are also being sent to county chairmen for distribution to voters. Among the documents chief in demand are pamphlets which discuss in detail the contested cases of delegations at the Chicago convention when President Taft was renominated. Thousands of copies of Woodrow Wilson's views on labor questions, as given in Congress by Representative Rodenburg, of Illinois, have been scattered broadcast over the state. Countless numbers of pamphlets showing the attitude of the Republican party toward the colored race have been distributed among the negro voters. Large pictures of President Taft and Col. W. T. Durbin have been sent out from state headquarters by tens of thousands and they are now decorating windows and campaign club quarters all over the Hoosier land. The present campaign is regarded by the Republicans as one of education, rather than one of bonfires and hurrah, and through literature and speakers the state committee is making a strong effort to get sound argument on all political questions before the thinking people of Indiana.

WEAKENS CAUSE OF PROSECUTION

Jack Zielig's Murder More Than Coinciuence.

TAKEN AT CRITICAL MOMENT

With the Trial of Policeman Becker Beginning Today, Prosecution is Disconcerted by Loss of One of Its Important Witnesses, Notorious Gang Leader Who Would Have Corroborated Testimony Against Inspector.

New York, Oct. 7.—Whatever motive was back of the killing of Big Jack Zelig, the gang leader, Saturday night by Philip Davidson, a Bowery drifter it is officially announced that the murder removes one of the important witnesses against Lieutenant Charles Becker, whose trial for the killing of Herman Rosenthal began today.

Zelig had promised District Attorney Whitman that he would testify that Jack Rose told the truth when Rose said that he went to Zelig at Becker's request, to get the gunmen to kill Rosenthal. Zelig would not have admitted that he had rounded up the murderers, but his testimony, in the opinion of the district attorney, was essential corroboration of that part of Rose's story incriminating Becker, which was in great need of corroboration.

The death of Zelig means also that the case against Policemen James C. White and John C. Steinert, two of the old strong-arm squad now under indictment for oppression and perjury, and who caused the arrest of Zelig for carrying concealed weapons and swearing to the falsehood that he had a pistol in his pocket, will have to be dismissed.

Not a Mere Coincidence.

It was freely admitted at the district attorney's office and at police headquarters that no serious flaw had been found in Davidson's story that he had gone to a pawnshop in Jersey City on Saturday afternoon after being beaten and robbed by Zelig, and at the pawnshop had bought a revolver that once had been the property of a policeman named Chris F. Maher, but had been lost by the policeman some months ago; that Davidson had come back to Manhattan and had killed Zelig solely because of the private grudge.

"But," so ran the substance of remarks by Deputy Commissioner Dougherty and Mr. Whitman, "if the shooting of an important witness in the Becker trial right on the eve of the trial is a coincidnece, it is a most remarkable coincidence. We are open to conviction, in view of many things, that the killing of Zelig just at this time is much more than a coincidence. And in the meantime everything will be done as quickly as possible to prove or disprove Davidson's contention that no one prompted him to get Zelig out of the way at a time so damaging to the prosecution of the trial in the Rosenthal murder."

Gyp the Blood, Lefty Louie, Whitey Lewis and Dago Frank, the four accused gunmen, and all of the Zelig gangsters seen are firm in their belief that Davidson had been prompted by someone to kill Zelig.

Commissioner Dougherty was especially interested in an investigation as to how the murderer happened to do the shooting with a revolver that should have been in the possession at the time of Policeman Maher. Maher, according to the deputy commissioner, first said he had lost the revolver on July 12 last, but later told Dougherty that he had lost it a year and a half ago.

Mr. Dougherty said he had heard stories that showed that Maher had lost three revolvers and a special investigation into these stories will be taken up at headquarters.

SLAIN BY ROBBER

Unknown Assailant Takes Life of Village Postmaster.

Lena, Ind., Oct. 7.—Daniel Newton, aged thirty-nine, a general merchant, postmaster and wealthy land owner of his place, was shot and instantly killed by an unidentified assailant. He was robbed of a satchel containing the stamps and receipts of the postoffice, amounting to about $50, which he carried home every night, but the robbers missed $300 which he had in his vest pocket. No clue which will lead to the arrest of the guilty parties has been unearthed.

$200,000 MISSING FROM A MAIL BAG

Lost Some Place Between Havana and New York.

New York, Oct. 7.—Secret service men and postoffice inspectors of two countries are investigating the mysterious disappearance of a registered mail package containing $200,000 consigned from Havana to the National Park bank of this city.

The loss was discovered last Wednesday or Thursday when the registered mail pouch from Havana was opened in the New York postoffice. When and where the package disappeared, whether in Havana, aboard the ship or train which brought it or thereafter, no one has been able to discover.

The postoffice authorities are working zealously on the case in the two républics as a matter of course, while private detectives have been set to work by the shipper, whose name is not revealed. The National Park bank has no more than a moral interest in the case, as by no possibility can the loss fall upon it.

"The money was shipped and when the bag was opened here it was gone; that is our story," said Maurice H. Ewer, cashier of the bank.

"Is your bank investigating?" he was asked.

"No, why?" he asked. "The shipper and the governments are doing that." Mr. Ewer declined to speak further.

The reports are to the effect that the registered mail pouch arrived in this city by steamship about Oct. 1. The Saratoga, of the Ward line, which was due to arrive on Oct. 1, came in on the following day, and she brought mail from Havana, but everybody connected with the line said the $200,000 package did not involve their ship. The money was a remittance from a financial institution to the big bank in adjustment of an exchange balance.

President Resumes His Trip.

EUROPE TRYING TO AVERT WAR

Well Defined Movement for Peace Started.

MORE OPTIMISTIC FEELING

Although Preparations For War Are Continuing at a Rapid Rate, an Understanding in European Capitals That Turkey Is Willing to Make Concessions to Aggressive Provinces Has a Quieting Effect.

London, Oct. 7.—In the dispatches from the near east a slightly more optimistic feeling is evidenced. Although preparations for war are continuing at a rapid rate and the mobilization of the Bulgarian army is said already to have been completed, no further "incidents" on the frontier are reported. In the view taken in several different capitals, if war is averted it will be by the immediate putting into effect of certain reforms in the Turkish empire. These reforms, it is believed, can only be effected by the combined action of the powers, and the suggestion comes from Bucharest that a European congress be convoked immediately to deal with the situation. Austria's apparent reluctance to join the movement for peace as that movement, so far, has been set on foot by the powers, is explained as the result of a desire on the part of that nation to have the ideas of all the powers with regard to the integrity of Turkey, the sovereignty of the sultan and the making of reform measures general throughout the Ottoman empire more explicitly explained. This desire on the part of Austria seems to tend toward the same result as that of the suggestions coming from the Balkan states themselves—that only in a European congress does there lie hope of a solution to the present problem.

That Turkey is willing to make concessions in the way of reforms is indicated by a dispatch received from Constantinople, the correspondent claiming to have official information that the government has decided to apply to all provinces of the empire the reforms framed by the international commission for eastern Roumelia in 1879 and made into law by imperial decree in the same year. These reforms, which would accord complete equality to all nationalities, have been cited by Bulgarian officials as embodying their idea of autonomy for Macedonia.

PREFERRED DEATH

Prominent Philadelphian Killed Himself in Face of Financial Ruin.

Philadelphia, Oct. 7.—Thomas J. Ryan, Democratic leader of Pennsylvania, member of the Donnelly-Ryan-Guffey triumvirate that for so long controlled the organization of that party in this state, ended his life late Sunday afternoon in his office in the Land Title and Trust building by shooting himself with a revolver.

Ryan was hopelessly involved financially, and from a man of wealth it is understood that he has, through unfortunate investments, become practically penniless. A year ago Dreamland in New York burned down and that loss, sustained almost entirely by him, was sufficient to have bankrupted anyone without unlimited resources. This season he built another amusement resort on the site of the old Point Breeze racetrack, but it has not been a success, and there was a meeting scheduled for Sunday evening, where his creditors were to gather and consider plans for a trusteeship.

This Mayor Was "Game."

Frankfort, Ky., Oct. 7.—When Patrick Haley drew a revolver and began firing at Mayor James H. Polsgrove the mayor, unarmed, charged him, knocked him down twice, and had him thoroughly subdued when Haley was placed under arrest. One bullet lodged in the mayor's leg and another passed through his hat. He had represented Haley's wife in a divorce suit.

Probabilities Favor Recovery.

Milwaukee, Oct. 7.—The condition of Ralph DePalma, injured Saturday at the finish of the grand prix race, shows no change. The physicians say that DePalam sustained a compound fracture of the leg and an abdominal puncture. They add that unless infection sets in the patient will recover.

Doctor Shoots Boy.

Pikesville, Ky., Oct. 7.—Dr. Samuel L. Stellard, a well-known physician, held up a party of boys on the road and commanded them to "line up so he could kill them." Stellard drew a revolver and killed one, the others escaping unhurt. Stellard was arrested. He is believed to be insane.

ASK LAWYERS TO QUIT WRANGLING

to understand what the witness meant.

The attorneys wrangled back and forth until Judge Barnes overruled the objections of the defense and declared the defense could learn from cross examination just what Mrs. Davis meant.

At one time all four attorneys were on their feet talking at once. Frank S. Jones objected to John Rynerson lecturing Mr. Davis on her mode of testimony. Mrs. Davis begged Mr. Rynerson's pardon and Mr. Rynerson begged her pardon. Mr. Rynerson objected again to Mrs. Davis repeating part of her testimony and Judge Barnes said the repetition was proper. "You objected and broke the continuity of the story to the jury and she can go back and begin over again if she wants to," he said.

At one time during the morning session Judge Barnes said it was his original understanding that this was a suit on an account but that it looked more to him like a divorce suit. He said it was, perhaps, not his business to object as long as the defense allowed the testimony to go in, but he said he was a little curious to know the theory of the plaintiff. The attorneys consulted and the defense decided not to object to the introduction of evidence about trouble between Mr. and Mrs. Davis as far back as 1909. Judge Barnes said it made no difference to him. "You may know what you are after and that's all right with me," he said. "I was just curious to know."

The case will probably be finished today.

OCTOBER IS BEST TIME FOR FISHING

Frosty Mornings of This Month Are Considered Ideal for Bass in Central Indiana.

LOCAL FISHERMEN SUCCESSFUL

Bait is Important Feature and Is Discussed by Disciple of Walton—Instructions Given.

Many local fisherman are spending these fine days along the banks of the river and report that fishing is good. There has always been more or less dispute as to which month of the year the best fishing may be found and this has been answered by Gustav J. T. Meyer who writes as follows:

October is the best month in which to fish the streams of central Indiana. The frosty mornings of October on the shore of an Indiana spring water stream can not be equalled anywhere. The stillness as you arrive is awe inspiring, the clearness of the water permits you to see every pebble on the bottom. The surroundings make you think that all the world has suddenly become silent and you feel yourself as though when you walk you ought to walk upon your toes as noiselessly as possible, in harmony with everything else. The only disturbance is the occasional drop of a leaf, which, of course, is slight, but in the stillness can be distinctly heard.

Later in the day you hear the cricket chirping or the katydid's rasping, shrill note. Have you ever taken a sun bath in October? I mean a sound, after-dinner sleep upon the ground in the open air. The good results of such a nap can not be explained, but must be found out by experience. I have never seen anywhere in the works of the later-day writers or the poets any reference to a nap in the open air on a sunshiny day in October; yet it is something that will be much written about when once its beneficial results become known.

During the hours between 12 and 2 the sun becomes very warm, and a nap can be taken in the open air with no ill results whatever. Heavy clothes are necessary at this season, as the mornings and evenings become cold.

The bass fisherman is now in his favorite period. October is considered ideal for bass fishing, and no one will dispute the theory that the largest ones are taken during this month. There is no treking about from one fishing hole to another; one will locate at a deep hole where there are logs or boulders and stay there. The bass are now in deep water and must be sought for there. The larger streams are best and the deeper the water is the better.

The bait question is somewhat troublesome for the ilve bait angler just now. Minnows, which are favorites, are hard to get. They, like the wily bass, have taken to the deep holes, and it is next to impossible to get them in quantity sufficient to last for more than one day's fishing.

Many trips are made to the small creeks and branches, with indifferent results. I find that the safest way to procure minnows is to set a glass trip during the warm hours of the day. The trap should be set in two and half to three feet of water in the smaller of deep holes in the large streams immediately down stream from a ripple or, better yet, where there is some brush in the water. However, there must be some current, as a fish will always work slowly up stream into the trap.

Hooking the bait is of some importance at this time of the year. The large mouth chub and the common shiner may be hooked in the mouth, as they will not hide under leaves, but the slippery dick and willow chub will do better when hooked in the back, about one-half inch back of the dorsal fin. When hooked in this manner it will be found that the weight of the hook in its rear will not permit it to nose under the leaves; in consequence it will continually be swimming toward the top of the water.

When the bait is thus hooked it is necessary to change oftener, as they will, by continued action, become totally exhausted in a short time. There is much controversy in regard to just how long one should leave a bass run after it takes the minnow. Some claim that it is best to leave the bass make a second run, and even a third, but it is my experience that when the minnow is small or of medium size and hooked in the head, that it is best to [illegible] the fish [illegible] line is stiff and [illegible] second [illegible] a little patience sometimes will bring home more fish. The size of the minnows used for bait is also problematical. In the fall I have caught large fish on small minnows and small fish on large minnows. That is simply a fancy of the angler. The best rule to follow where the bait is plentiful is to take a medium size minnow.

The kind or species is another open question, as some favor one and some another. I believe if this question is run down to real facts it would be found to be like this: When the bass go to deep water they find there a certain species of minnow life, and as a matter of course, soon become in the habit of chasing that kind of food. It seems logical that if the bass would see one of the same kind it would make a dart for it with the confidence that it had taken others of the flock without ill results.

However, this is theory, but where facts are absent most anything else will do. There is one thing certain, the wily bass is freakish, and will take bait in so many ways and under such peculiar circumstances that I have sometimes thought the cunning of the angler is more imaginary than real, at least where live bait is used.

EARLY APPLE TREES

Of Robert Sutton, Near Kurtz, Bear A Second Crop.

Reports have been made of several cherry trees in this vicinity putting forth blossoms for the second time this summer and of a number of other trees which are doing freakish things at this time of the year. Some fruit trees belonging to Robert Sutton, of Kurtz, have established a new record along this line and seem to have little or no regard for the season of the year.

He has one tree of early transparent apples which is bearing a second crop. The apples are almost as large as those of the first crop and are sound and perfectly formed. He also has a tree of early dwarf pears which is bearing a second crop. The first of the pears were picked from this tree early in the summer, but several weeks ago the tree blossomed forth for the second time and now has quite a number of small pears. These were nipped by the cold weather, however, before they became ripe.

STAINED HANDS

Of Small Boys Indicate That Walnuts Are Ready to Hull.

From all appearances many of the small boys of Seymour are suffering from some new disease of the hand. They suddenly turn black as coal and take on the new color in a very short period of time. The change is most noticeable on Saturdays and after school hours. There is no need of alarm, however, for while it looks serious to persons unacquainted with the habits of boys, it is simply an indication that walnuts are getting ripe.

The average small boy would rather hull walnuts than do anything except eat a good meal, but one of the requirements is that no gloves are to be used in performing the work. It is said that walnuts are quite plentiful in this part of the county, although they are becoming somewhat scarce on the trees which stand along the side of the road and in other places which are accessible to the youngsters.

Nearly every day pawpaw hunters scour the woods and are usually rewarded with well filled baskets. The woods are said to be well filled with pawpaws this summer and that they are unusually large.

OUR MARINES HAVE TWO BRISK BATTLES

Nicaraguan Rebels Opposed Their Progress.

Washington, Oct. 7.—In a further dispatch from Admiral Southerland news of another clash between American marines and rebel forces in Nicaragua has been received at the state department. As a result of the fight five Americans were slightly wounded, while thirteen of the rebel force were killed and a large number wounded.

The skirmish occurred on the morning of the battle at Barranca, though in a different place. Lieutenant Long, commanding the marines from the United States ship Denver at Chichigalpa, on the line of the railroad from Corinto to Granada, was endeavoring to secure a number of dynamite bombs which the rebels had prepared, presumably for use against the American forces or the railroad.

Surrounded by Rebels.

Lieutenant Long and his men were surrounded by a mob of rebels, armed with rifles and machetes. The rebels opened fire on the marines and the fire was promptly returned. Thirteen of the rebels were killed instantly and a greater number were wounded. All who were able to, ran from the scene. Five American marines were slightly wounded, but it is stated that all of the wounded on the American side will recover.

Admiral Southerland further reports that the rebels lost more than forty dead in the assault upon Barranca. Twenty of their number are known to be seriously wounded and fourteen were made prisoners. The total rebel force in the engagement numbered 540. They were dislodged from their position only after the marines and bluejackets had actually reached the top of the hill. They then fled into Masaya, where the government troops of Nicaragua met them and another serious engagement took place. It is stated that the government forces lost 200 dead at Masaya, while the number of rebels killed is thought to be much greater.

THEIR LAST JOY RIDE

Nine Young Philadelphians Plunge Over Bridge in Auto.

Philadelphia, Oct. 7.—A touring car racing at top speed along the Thirty-third street boulevard after a midnight trip to roadhouses, plunged through the railing of the bridge over the Pennsylvania's tracks and fell to the ground, fifty-eight feet below. Seven of the nine occupants of the car were killed outright and the other two died on their way to the hospital.

The car was owned and driven by Edward Shaw, jr., who was associated with his father in the lumber business, and who was demonstrating to his acquaintances how he could drive it. His chums who died with him were Robert A. Boyd, William Lawrence, Charles B. Jefferson, Gordon H. Miller, Daniel Wilks, Jesse H. Holmes, Ernest Schofield and Robert Geisel.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

GET THE HABIT.

When you have boiled down all the advice of all the books and articles respecting the building of a fortune you have this one great fact:

Spend less than you earn.

There is no other way—no royal road. To get on financially you must save.

Add to this fact the other fact that "nothing on earth beats interest on money" and you have the combination which—if you will work it—will make your fortune.

But, you say, the 4 per cent which the savings banks pay is not much.

Figure a little. Do you know that 10 cents deposited daily at compound interest at 4 per cent amounts in ten years to the tidy aggregate of $450?

Whereat you hasten to start a savings account on 10 cents daily deposit. But hold! Can you or will you keep up that deposit 3,650 times? That's different, eh?

Take another example:

Suppose you have a good job, good health and determination and you are able to save $5 per week. How much do you suppose that will produce at 4 per cent in twenty years?

$7,855!

Whereupon you ask yourself why do not more persons begin a bank account and make a sure thing of accumulating a fortune?

Because of the strain.

They will not keep everlastingly at it. A man is not a machine. He rebels at the monotony of regularity. It goes against the grain. He will not form the habit of saving.

Perhaps you have tried.

You begin with enthusiasm. This week and the next it is easy to spare the sum you have decided upon. But week after next you see something you [illegible] not absolutely need, but which you [illegible] much want. You miss a week. [illegible] behind on your schedule, become [illegible]ttent. Finally you grow tired [illegible] denial and quit, saying: [illegible]e use?"

TRUTH TRIUMPHS

Seymour Citizens Testify For the Public Benefit.

A truthful statement of a Seymour citizen, given in his own words, should convince the most skeptical about the merits of Doan's Kidney Pills. If you suffer from backache, nervousness, sleeplessness, urinary disorders or any form of kidney ills, use a tested kidney medicine.

A Seymour citizen tells of Doan's Kidney Pills.

Could you demand more convincing proof of merit?

Mrs. W. Abbott, 23 W. Brown St., Seymour, Ind., says: "I do not know what I would have done without Doan's Kidney Pills. My back was lame and sore and often I could not get around. The secretions from my kidneys bothered me. I had read and heard so much about Doan's Kidney Pills that I finally gave them a trial, and the results of their use surprised me. Three boxes made me well. I still use Doan's Kidney Pills occasionally and recommend them just as highly as I did in 1910 when I gave them my first public testimonial. You may continue to use my former statement."

Suggestions For Women.

In the October Woman's Home Companion, Harvey W. Wiley, formerly chief of the United States Bureau of Chemistry, writes an article on "Intelligent Eating." He gives a great many practical suggestions, and on the subject of women says:

"Women should be specially careful to choose the right diet. For the sake of her beauty, if nothing else, a woman should choose the right amount of nutritive foods, and avoid the temptations of overeating. Coarser bread, more fruit, less meat, and especially moderation, or total abstinence, in the use of tea and coffee will secure relief from the all too retarded action of the digestive organs which is the curse of so many women who lead sedentary lives. No woman who eats properly and gets plenty of fresh air and exercise will have a poor complexion nor get too fat; neither will she suffer from nerves and hysteria.

"The woman who lives right, thinks right, and works right may be more beautiful at forty or sixty than at twenty, and the preservation of the divine gift of beauty is a duty that no woman should neglect for her own sake and the sake of the world about her.

"It was formerly thought that the drinking of liquids with meals was highly injurious, and probably the overdrinking of liquids is injurious. Recent investigations, however, have shown that bad effects resulting from drinking simple beverages are likely overestimated.

"Good milk, a glass of water, cider, or grape-juice, and even a little tea or coffee, well diluted with hot milk, may be taken at meals. Tea and coffee form but a temporary stimulant, due chiefly to an alkaloid caffeine which they contain. Too free use of these beverages causes nerve exhaustion and dyspepsia."

The Danger After Grip

lies often in a run-down system. Weakness, nervousness, lack of appetite, energy and ambition, with disordered liver and kidneys often follow an attack of this wretched disease. The greatest need then is Electric Bitters, the glorious tonic, blood purifier and regulator of stomach, liver and kidneys. Thousands have proved that they wonderfully strengthen the nerves, build up the system and restore to health and good spirits after an attack of Grip. If suffering, try them. Only 50 cents. The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

OKRA RECIPES.

OKRA is a favorite vegetable in Dixie, and truly delicious are the gumbo recipes which are found in the notebooks of many southern cooks. Chicken gumbo soup rightly made is a dish fit for the gods.

A Rarely Good Soup.

Gumbo Soup.—Take a fowl weighing about four pounds, a quart of green okra pods, three or four ounces of ham, a sliced onion, a half pod of small red pepper, a third of a cupful of flour, three tablespoonfuls of lard, three tomatoes and two sprigs of thyme. Cut the fowl into joints and the ham into pieces. Saute these in hot lard till they are golden brown. Do not use any iron vessels when okra is to be cooked. Remove the chicken and saute the onion and the okra pods, cut into pieces. Then add the flour, stirring it in, and when blended with the fat pour in gradually a quart of water. When this boils add to the chicken with another quart of water the peeled tomatoes, red pepper, bay leaf, thyme and salt. Cover the vessel and let simmer slowly until the chicken is cooked. Add more salt or water if necessary. Serve, adding a tablespoonful of boiled rice to each plate.

Minced on Toast.

Okra and Tomatoes.—Boil and drain eight or ten okra pods. Then mince fine with a small onion. Fry slightly in an ounce of butter and add four peeled and sliced tomatoes. Simmer a few minutes, then add the okra pods and season with salt and paprika and cook for a quarter of an hour longer. Serve on slices of buttered toast.

A Simple Way.

Boiled Okra.—Take young and tender okra pods, cut off the sharp ends and place in a saucepan of boiling water, slightly salted. When the okra is tender drain off the water, add an ounce of butter, salt and pepper to taste. Serve hot.

A Novel Salad.

Okra Salad.—Wash, drain and boil young okra pods until tender. Drain and set aside to cool. Then cut them into slices. Rub the inside of the salad bowl with the cut side of a clove or garlic and put the okra into the bowl with a finely chopped green pepper and a little grated horseradish. Sprinkle with salt, pour in two teaspoonfuls of olive oil and toss until these are well blended. Then add a tablespoonful of tarragon vinegar. Serve individual portions on leaves of tender lettuce with slices of tomato.

SOME DAY

Some day the city is going to look after things a whole lot better than it does now.

Some day all untenanted apartments and houses will be properly sterilized and fumigated.

Some day the use of wall paper in apartment houses will be prohibited.

Some day our playgrounds, parks and public buildings will be the tip-top standard of the United States, if not of the world.

Chronic Ulcers Mean Bad Blood

If outside influences were responsible for chronic ulcers, then external applications and simple cleanliness would be a curative treatment. But the trouble is always in the blood which has become unhealthy and diseased, and keeps the sore open by continually discharging into it the impurities and infectious matter with which the circulation is filled. Salves, washes, lotions, etc., may cause the place to scab over temporarily, but the blood is not made purer by such treatment and soon the old inflammation and discharge will return and the sore be as bad or worse than before. Nor will removing the place by surgical operation insure a cure; the cause still remains in the blood and the sore is bound to return. S. S. S. heals old sores by going down into the blood and removing the impurities and germs which are responsible for the place. S. S. S. thoroughly purifies the circulation and in this way destroys the source of every chronic ulcer. In addition to purifying the blood S. S. S. enriches this vital fluid and in every way assists nature in overcoming the bad effects of a chronic ulcer. Book on Sores and Ulcers and any medical advice free.

CHAPTER VIII.

A Question Concerning His Grace.

We had closed the subject and disposed of it when a servant brought me a note. The handwriting was not familiar to me and I begun to cogitate about it with no Jo to hustle me. I even held it out before Laura in my efforts to guess.

"Why, it's from Hap?" she exclaimed, seeing; she couldn't help it.

I opened it, noting the handwriting again before I read the actual words. A woman takes a curious interest in a man's handwriting. She deduces from it, just what, it's hard to say, but it usually makes or changes an opinion.

"Don't blush, dear," Laura remarked cold-bloodedly as I began to read. I know I did blush then.

"Am I blushing?" I asked, with wide-eyed innocence. "I don't see why. He merely wants me to go to the ball game."

"I hope you're going," she declared. Suddenly she turned upon me. "Loulie, I wish you'd marry Hap."

I put my hand over her mouth, profoundly shocked.

"Gracious!" I ejaculated. "You're so—so sudden! If you don't quit saying your thoughts out loud in that awful way I'll—I'll refuse to speak to you."

"That for Natalie!" she said and she snapped her fingers cheerfully. "Hap's crazy."

I wasn't so sure about Hap being crazy, but then Laura hadn't read the letter. I intended to show it to Mrs. Hazard if I didn't lose my nerve, just to see if she thought I was getting on the right track.

We seemed destined to make a day of that lost bracelet of Natalie's, for as Hap and I were getting into the gray car to go to the ball game, a limousine drew up at the curb and Natalie alighted.

"Good morning," she drawled. "Won't you come back for a moment? I have something most important to say."

I didn't want to contradict her by saying "good afternoon," so I bowed and got out. Hap followed reluctantly. He wanted to see the practice before the game.

Natalie kept us in suspense until Mrs. Hazard and Laura came down, and as Laura had to dress and didn't hurry at that she appeared about the time the last practice gong was sounding at the ball grounds.

"I suppose reporters were here this morning?" Natalie asked finally.

"Yes," answered Mrs. Hazard. "I saw them. It's the only way to get rid of them, but I said nothing. I sent them to you."

"Thanks," she cooed with exasperating slowness. "I saw them."

Hap began to glare through a window as Natalie seemed to be reflecting what further to say, and I shivered with pure nervousness.

"I told them," she said at last, "that the bracelet was unmistakably lost; also that I hadn't the slightest idea where I lost it. It seemed the only thing to do."

"Then you really don't believe you lost it?" asked Laura.

"My dear girl, it really doesn't matter what I think. It was the only thing to do and I did it. I might add that I had to be questioned this morning by a big, boorish policeman who asked me all sorts of impertinent things I didn't care to answer. I'd rather lose fifty bracelets than have to talk to him again."

"Don't Blush, Dear," Laura Remarked Cold-Bloodedly.

Hap moved in the direction of the door, and winked at me to follow, but I sat still, not knowing just what to do.

"It's hardly fair to insinuate, Natalie," Laura said. "If you think you've been robbed you ought to say so and find out who robbed you."

"O-o-o-oh! The police!" Natalie gasped. "I can't find out who robbed me without answering a lot of dreadful questions, in which case I'd rather not know. I insisted that I lost the bracelet at the Abercrombies and the one at Mrs. Loring's because I didn't choose to answer them, and this must be lost, too. Otherwise, it might be awkward for Miss Codman. We must insist that the bracelet is lost."

I looked at Mrs. Hazard, wondering if the implication was more or less than appeared on the surface of Natalie's speech. Laura put a protecting hand on my shoulder.

"I think, Natalie," smiled Mrs. Hazard, "that if necessary, Miss Codman can stand any awkwardness."

"I think so," I managed to sav.

"Oh, dear me! I'm not accusing anybody," Natalie laughed, a mere tinkle of far-away bells. "I am trying not to. The bracelet positively was lost, and I merely thought we would, all of us, have it understood that way. The newspapers are so curious, you know, and reporters so very suspicious and so very, very wise."

"But what about the insurance people?" Laura asked. "Will they take your word that the bracelets were lost?"

"I don't see but what they will have to," replied Natalie loftily.

"Is that all?" asked Hap from the doorway.

"Oh, yes," cooed Natalie. "Sorry to have detained you. Won't you drop in to tea about five?"

"Can't promise, Natalie," Hap answered. "Miss Codman and I are going to the ball game; might not be out then; never know when it's going to be ten innings or more."

If Natalie was surprised at his refusal she showed it only in a little flutter of her drooping lids.

"Oh, to be sure," she replied, and I know she hadn't the slightest idea what innings are. "But bring Miss Codman with you."

She smiled very sweetly and I bowed in acknowledgment of a cordial invitation. She arose to go as we did and that delayed us more, for her adieu was languid, but when she and I reached the sidewalk the gray car's engine was snorting like mad, blowing off some of its owner's temper.

Hap assisted Natalie into the limousine while I climbed into the gray car unaided. It was an awkward situation, and for the life of me I didn't know why. Just as Hap was letting off the emergency, Natalie leaned from the limousine.

"Are you going to the Sargent musicale tomorrow?" she asked me.

"I don't think so," I answered. "I don't go anywhere unless it's necessary."

"Oh, forgive me!" she begged, and the footman closed the door.

Hap exploded as the limousine moved away, and I was awfully angry. She knew I was not going to the musicale. The cat!

"I wonder if I ought to apologize for her?" Hap wanted to know. He gave the throttle a yank, and I was so angry I didn't care if the old engine burst.

"Are you engaged to her?" I asked.

"I am not," he replied.

"Oh!" I tried to put a world of meaning into it. "I have no wish to be de trop."

"You are not de trop," he replied. "Who told you I was engaged to her?"

"No one," I admitted; "but she gave me the impression just then."

He jerked on his gloves and we started. We were both terribly serious, tragic even—you see, we were both young—in spite of the perfection of the early summer's day, the green grass, the bright sun; and I was sure birds were singing in the trees if we could only have heard them above the hum of the engine.

"May I laugh?" I asked suddenly. "It seems to be the only thing to do."

"You may laugh or swear, just as you prefer!"

We both shrieked; as I said, we were both very young.

"Pshaw: what's the use?" he asked. "The world is young yet and the ball game only commencing. Well, I guess every man has to make a fool of himself once over an older woman. I am cured. Will you forgive me?"

"Forgive you?" I echoed. "Why, I don't see what I have to do with it."

"No? I thought perhaps you would."

I didn't answer. I know when a man is trying to make love to me even when I pretend I don't. I didn't answer because I was afraid of getting beyond my depth. I wasn't sure just how far I was to go with him before I snapped it off; and there was that look in his eyes again that I wasn't able to take care of.

When I came home after the most wonderful game of baseball I had ever witnessed—and the score was awful at that, fourteen to nine—I found a telephone call from Jo. I rang her up.

"I've been thinking of that lost bracelet and the duke," she said. "Do you remember the Duc d'Aubigny, who went to jail for jewel robberies the first year we were in Paris?"

"Can't remember, Jo."

"Well, I do now. I don't see how I forgot him. He was about the cleverest thief the nobility ever produced. His methods were simple. He just took things; a jewel simply disappeared. His victims were rich Americans principally, who were so highly flattered by his society that they didn't dare expose him."

I held on to the receiver as if I feared she would run away before she finished, and my heart was thumping so I had to moisten my lips to frame my question.

"He went to jail, did you say, Jo?"

"Yes, finally. I don't remember for how long, but that was four years ago."

"But the name? Of course even a duke can change his name, but how about the Almanach de Gotha and ancestors back to the eleventh century? Did you ever see him?" I was all atremble and it seemed a year before she answered.

"Yes, at the races at Auteuil. Phil Dempsey pointed him out to me. It was hardly a month later that he was arrested."

"What—what did he look like?"

"Tall and fair, with a saber cut across his cheek."

"No, dear," I answered. "This duke is small and dark, and I think perhaps the nearest he ever got to a saber was in the audience at a romantic play."

She laughed and said good-by, and I hung up the receiver with a vague sense of disappointment.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood, and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

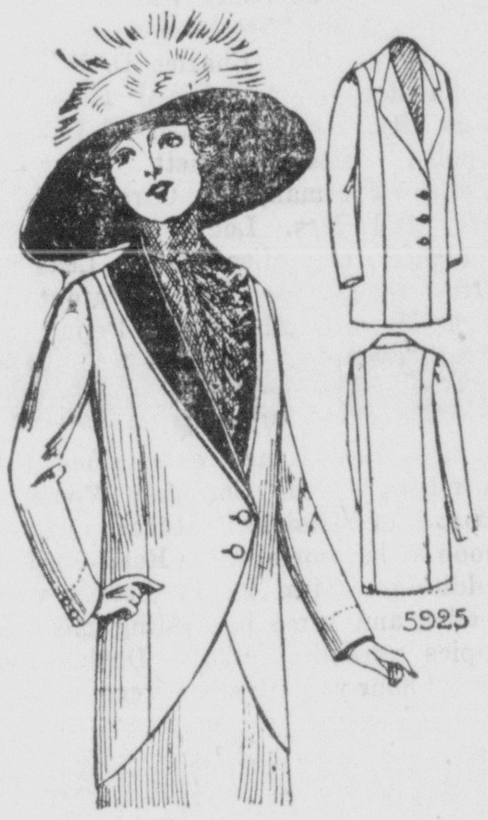
Practical Fashions

LADY'S COAT.



Here is one of the most fashionable coat models of the season, and one that any woman can carry out without difficulty. It is made in the popular 32½ inch length and can be finished with straight or cutaway fronts and with notched collar or shawl collar. The fastening is effected by two buttons and the collar is made of satin.

The pattern (5925) is cut in sizes 32 to 42 inches bust measure. Medium size will require 3¾ yards of 36 inch material and ¾ of a yard of satin.

To procure this pattern send 10 cents to "Pattern Department," of this paper. Write name and address plainly, and be sure to give size and number of pattern.

LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES

They Are Closely Observing Public Health Conditions.

An examining physician for one of the prominent Life Insurance Companies, in an interview on the subject, made the astonishing statement that the reason why so many applicants for insurance are rejected is because kidney trouble is so common to the American people, and the large majority of applicants do not even suspect that they have the disease.

He states that judging from his own experienc and reports from druggists who are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is one preparation that has probably been more successful in relieving and curing these diseases than any remedy known. The mild and healing influence of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of cures.

We find that Swamp-Root is strictly an herbal compound and we would advise our readers who feel in need of such a remedy to give it a trial. It is on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes—fifty cents and one dollar.

However, if you wish first to test its wonderful meirts, send to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle, absolutely free. When writing be sure and mention the Daily Republican.

MR. AND MRS. REID

Ambassador to England and Wife Home on Brief Visit.

© 1912, by American Press Association.

New York, Oct. 5.—Whitelaw Reid, American ambassador to England, accompanied by Mrs. Reid, is home to attend the opening of the new education building of the state of New York in Albany on Oct. 15, 16 and 17. He expects to return to England on October 22.

NO MONEY TO STAGE WAR IN THE BALKANS

This Is the One Note of Optimism In Situation.

London, Oct. 5.—Word that the war in the Balkans has begun may be expected hourly. The British Mediterranean fleet has been ordered to start for the Levant. The cruiser Welmouth, according to a news dispatch from Gibraltar, has gone ahead of the other fighting ships with the north coast of Crete as her destination.

Rumors that Italy and Turkey have signed a peace pact incline diplomatists to pessimism as to the Balkan troubles. They reason that with the Italian war off her hands Turkey will enter with zeal into a war after her own liking on her own borders.

Continued rumors of severe fighting near Albania, where the Bulgarians had crossed their borders and attacked the Turks roused the capitals of the involved countries, but could not be confirmed. It is known, however, that the troops of Turkey and the Balkan states are operating very near one another and an engagement may be expected at any moment.

Whatever optimism is felt as to the outcome of the complicated affairs in the Balkans is based on the fact that in the first place the little states will have great difficulty in raising funds from the banks of Europe for the financing of any war against Turkey, and in the second place that the bigger countries look with disapproval upon such a war.

She Enters Bank by Skylight.

Hammond, Ind., Oct. 5.—The board of directors of the Indiana Harbor National bank was in session in the bank offices when 235 pound Mary Dopa fell through the skylight and landed in a sitting position on the long table among them. The directors scattered in panic. Miss Dopa was not hurt. She had been hanging out wet clothes on the roof of an adjoining building and had tripped and fallen.

TERSE TELEGRAMS

In all, Governor Wilson's present journey will cover 4,580 miles.

James Bryce, British ambassador to the United States, has returned to Washington from his summer's trip to Australia.

Harry Lauder, the Scotch comedian, who is ill with intestinal trouble, spends his days at a nursing home and his evenings on the stage singing.

President and Mrs. Taft left Beverly today for a six-days' motor trip through Massachusetts, Vermont and New Hampshire, expecting to travel about 700 miles.

The annual state conference of charities and correction will be held at Logansport, Oct. 12-15, and many of the most notable social workers in this state and others will be on the program.

The mobilization of the Atlantic fleet in New York will begin tomorrow and from then until Sunday, Oct. 13, there will be an almost continuous program of events to be participated in by the men of the fleet.

Mrs. A. E. Taylor, forty years old, wife of Dr. A. E. Taylor of Philadelphia, was killed when she fell from a third-story window of the Auditorium hotel at Chicago, crashing head first upon the cement walk.

If a verdict of guilty is returned against Ettor, Giovanitti and Caruso in connection with the killing of an Italian woman during a strike riot at Lawrence, Mass., last winter, the Industrial Workers of the World are going to call a general strike of all members throughout the country.

FANS KEYED UP FOR THE OPENING BATTLE

Curtain About Ready to Rise for Grand Finale.

New York, Oct. 7.—The curtain having fallen on the season's National and American league champion production the theater is being set for the grand finale, the world's series of seven games or less between the Giants and Red Sox, which begins at the Polo grounds here tomorrow afternoon. On the eve of the first game interest in the big diamond struggle becomes sharper. With the general condition of each team excellent and all the pitchers especially so, the talk has centered chiefly about which pitcher McGraw will select for the opening battle. This is the great mystery as well as the main topic of speculation.

New Yorkers are convinced that the Giants will have to have strong pitching to win from Wood, but they have an abiding faith in McGraw's judgment to pick the best he has for the work. However, the indications are that any one of three leading boxmen would be fit to give a good account of himself. Mathewson put in the week resting and taking observations on the Bostons. Tesreau and Marquard were both worked just enough last week to keep them in practice.

Hundreds of supporters of the Red Sox will arrive here from Boston between now and tomorrow morning. Mayor Fitzgerald of Boston will head the delegation, which will embrace some of the best known citizens in the Hub.
